Making Sense of Brexit: A roundtable to answer your questions
11 November 2020

As part of the ESRC's annual Festival of Social Science, the Centre for Britain and Europe held its second roundtable Q&A on Brexit on 11 November 2020.

Helping the audience with their queries about the full gamut of questions about the UK's changing relationship with the EU was a panel chaired by Prof. Simon Usherwood.

Together with his colleagues, Dr Simona Guerra and Prof. Holger Breinlich, Simon covered topics as diverse as the economic impacts, Scottish devolution and public opinion since the referendum.

Drawing on their respective areas of research, the panel focused on providing evidence-led answers to questions, something that was commented upon both during the evening event and afterwards, as a change from the often confusing and contradictory soundbites of many in the public debate.
