

Research Incubator: Management Learning and Education

February 1
10:00 - 14:00

Surrey Idea Room 66MS03

Future of Work Research Centre

About the Incubator

Does teaching give you inspiration to debate and write about management education?
Do you hold data from classroom activities that could be examined more systematically?
And is knowledge creation what attracted you to work in academia?

If so, the inaugural research incubator “Management Learning and Education” of the Future of Work Research Centre is for you!

Prepare for a half-day of insightful presentations and interactive activities that will help you brainstorm a research project or a research bid, and identify potential collaborators.

Highlights

- Naomi Winstone of Surrey Institute of Education will talk about bringing your disciplinary expertise to educational research.
- Irina Cojuharenco of Surrey Business School will share the experience of writing her Academy of Management Learning and Education essay “Business schools and hubris” (with Eugene Sadler-Smith, this was 3rd most read and most cited paper of 2021!).

NEXT

- It will be your turn to brainstorm a dream project via one-on-one exercises with colleagues and small group discussions of your topic areas and methods.

We hope you end the day with a clear vision of a contribution you can make to management learning and education and connected to colleagues who will help make that vision a reality!

Places are available on a first come first served basis, so please register before *January 26 at 12:00!

We wish you a productive New 2024 and hope to see you join on February 1 10:00 to 14:00 in Surrey Idea Room 66MS03!

Programme

1

10:00 Arrival and the Wall of Favourites

Please bring your favourite management learning and education article to display on the Wall of Favourites. If you want to search for one, try Academy of Management Learning and Education, Journal of Management Studies, Studies in Higher Education, Management Learning, Journal of Management Inquiry and more.

10:10 Welcome from the organizers

10:20 Bringing your disciplinary expertise to educational research: Finding a niche

Naomi Winstone, Surrey Institute of Education

10:45 Business schools and hubris: an AMLE essay

Irina Cojuharenco, Surrey Business School

2

11:10 What is your management learning and education story? Six and a half steps...

Prepare to engage in a one-on-one listening exercise, during which we will take turns asking questions about a management learning and education piece our partner would like to be known for, a dream! We will play with the idea that a typical fairytale does not only have a dream goal, but other structural elements too...

Lunch Break

* Please BYOL (Bring Your Own Lunch)

3

13:00 Small groups set-up

13:10 Group discussions by topic

13:30 Group discussions by method

13:50 Wrap-up

Please share what you take away at the end of the incubator. Perhaps, new collaborators or an idea for a paper or a new research bid? We will display all take-aways on the Wall of Favourites!
